

31 October 2011

PRESS RELEASE

The Artistic ‘Sensitivity’ of Journalists

It is with great pleasure that Hermes Airports Ltd is hosting an exhibition at Larnaka International Airport, featuring works by Cypriot journalists with the aim of presenting a different side to the people of the Media to the general public.

The talent and artistic sensitivities of five journalists, Nicholas Markantonis and Panayiotis Demopoulos from Sigma, Costas Constantinou from CyBC, Constantinos Champalis from Phileleftheros Newspaper and Miranda Lysandrou from Kathimerini Newspaper, are highlighted and captured in a unique way through paintings and snapshots, inspired by their professional field work as well as personal experiences.

In a statement, the Public Relations and Communications Manager of Hermes Airports Ltd, Adamos Aspris, said Hermes Airports gives particular importance to its media relations and recognizes the significant help given by the Media to the public by providing useful information as well as the coverage of important events.

He continued to say that this relationship must be two-way, and through the exhibition inaugurated today at Larnaka International Airport, we wish to give the opportunity to journalists to “communicate” with the public through their creations; opening their hearts and souls to the public.

The works will be on exhibition until the end of November and can be viewed by the travelling and non-travelling public at the Larnaka International Airport departures area.

