PRESS RELEASE

Art Through the Eyes of Children

A different kind of art exhibition is currently being hosted at Larnaka International Airport. It features artworks created by children of Hermes Airports' staff from both Cyprus airports. The children, aged from four to eleven, through their brushwork, vivid imagination, and love of life have managed to portray the world as seen through their own eyes in a simple yet expressive manner. With vivid and bright colours they radiate with youthful enthusiasm visions of a world full of love and kindness, far removed from the worries and stress of the everyday world of "grown-ups".

Opening the exhibition, the CEO of Hermes Airports, Mr. Alfred van der Meer, expressed his delight at this exhibition, stressing the importance that Hermes Airports attaches to strengthening ties between the company and the employees of the airports and their families. He noted that it is an honour to host a part of our staff's family life at Larnaka International Airport. "The family is one of the most fundamental and greatest gifts of life and we at Hermes Airports know how to honour our people and their families. We are grateful to them because together with their children they are sharing with us today these very special moments."

The works of the "Young Artists" will soon adorn the offices of Hermes at both Cyprus airports. For the staff of Hermes Airports, the airports are their second home and their colleagues are their second family. This is why today we feel particular satisfaction and pride in opening the art exhibition of the children of our own big family, the airports of Cyprus.
