

27 May 2011

PRESS RELEASE

Figurative flights at the Airports of Cyprus

Once again figurative paintings by talented artists, both old and new, are being exhibited to thousands of visitors to Hermes Airports. The initiative which began in the fall of last year aims to project Cypriot art and culture.

The exhibition is currently underway at Pafos International Airport where visitors can enjoy unique works of art by new generation artists such as Stefanos Nearchou, Giorgos Georgiou, Froso Antreou, Costas Charalampous, Eleana Chrysanthou and Anna Alexandrou.

The works depict modernism and the tendencies and concerns of the Cypriot artists, expressed through searching, experimenting and new experiences. During June the new artist's exhibition will be replaced with works by older generation artists. The exhibition will then be transported to Larnaka International Airport. At both airports, the selected exhibition areas are accessible to the public whether they travel or not.

In his statement, Hermes Airports PR and Communications Manager, Adamos Aspris stated that "with the presentation of these figurative exhibitions, Hermes Airports provides an opportunity to leading artists to expose their work to thousands of travellers, while simultaneously strengthening the sense of culture that is already infused at the two airports of Cyprus".

The philosophy of Hermes Airports he concluded, is that the airports of Cyprus are living organisms which "experience" along with the travelling passengers, fascinating moments which promote art and culture.

